The Sales There Estimated at $400,000—A $206,000 Deal on Woodland Avenue and a $90,000 Acre Purchase Near Westport—Other City News.

There is always a lull before a storm and the dullness in real estate during the last few days seems to have been that kind of a lull. At least fifty dealers and purchasers were on the ground this morning. At least $400,000 worth of Randolph property has changed hands in the last 24 hours.

EQUAL TO ANY IN THE WORLD.

The New Hotel Will be Called 'The Midland" and Will be Built With as Little Delay as Possible.

Messrs. N. B. Ream, W. E. Hale and James B. Smith, of Chicago, projectors of the big hotel at Walnut, Seventh and Grand avenue, have written Mr. L. T. Moore a letter calculated to allay the doubts regarding the completion of the work, because of the slow progress made thus far. The first plan, they say, was to build a six-story hotel of ordinary quality, to cost $400,000. Afterward the plans were totally changed, and it was decided to make the hotel the peer of any in the world. Mr. Root, of Burnham & Root, the architects, went to Europe with Mr. Hale to study the most advanced and perfect ideas in hotel building. "The result of the investigation has been to secure to Kansas City a hotel equal to any in the world, and in many respects superior to such hotels as the Grand and Metropolis of London, and the Grand and Continental of Paris, which are conceded to be among the best, if not the very best, in the world." The building, which will be called "The Midland," will be eight stories high and will be a model in every respect. The care taken in perfecting the plans has caused the seeming delay. The contracts are being let and the work will be carried on with all possible energy.

James B. Smith, one of the projectors and D. H. Burnham, the architect of the new hotel reached the city from Chicago this morning.

During the trial the plaintiff jumped up at the production of testimony which did not suit her and shouted: "He desayvin' ye, Judge; that he is!" While on the witness stand she, Keenan, vituperated the defendants' witnesses, and when her attorney remonstrated, proceeded to scold him, adding: "The jury and mesilf understhand what we are about, Mr. Lawyer."

TIPS FROM SPIRIT LAND.

GHOSTS FINDING BUYERS FOR KANSAS CITY REAL ESTATE.

Certain Favored Tracts on the Occult Lists—Kansas City Additions, the Fame of Which Has Penetrated the Beyond—One Deal Frustrated by a Lawyer.

On Baltimore avenue lives a slender woman with piercing black eyes and a high falsetto voice, who gives supernatural tips to real estate buyers. She calls herself a spiritualistic-clairvoyant and holds seances on alternate evenings in the parlor of her house. Last night eighteen people communed with the occult world in the little room and others were refused admittance. The admission fee was $1 a head and the visitors were closely scanned at the door by a young man, a nephew of the medium. Persons whose visage gave any suggestion of incredulity were sternly excluded upon the ground that they lacked "receptive faculties" and were unavailable for spiritualistic influence. Private seances are given in the day time for $5 each.

It is a fair presumption that the admission fee forms only a small part of the black-eyed woman's income. The spirits she summons have a penchant for giving their auditors advice regarding real estate investments and, so far as a STAR reporter could ascertain, possible purchasers are steered towards land controlled by one or two firms of dealers who, no doubt, divide commissions with their spectral "hustlers," for whom the medium acts as receiving cashier.

One lady, who nearly invested money in accordance with directions from spirit land, via Baltimore avenue, was found by the reporter. "The advice was given me," she said, "by the spirit of my dead daughter. I was so overcome by the sight of her that I fully believed her injunction to buy property in a certain place was for my advantage, but when I proposed it to my lawyer he declared that the medium was a fraud and succeeded in convincing me that the spirit I saw was not authentic. I am a firm believer in spiritualism, and even if this woman is an imposter it will harm the Society of Spiritualists to expose her. There are imposters in every creed and business, and no more in spiritualism than in any other."

The lady describes the manner of her daughter's return in the spirit as follows: "We all gathered at the medium's residence, and at an appointed hour entered a parlor, at one end of which was hung a curtain extending across the room and suspended from the ceiling. Before we entered the room a gentleman scrutinized each of us closely. He allowed all the good subjects to enter and be seated, but prevented bad subjects from entering. Twelve of us entered and sat down. After we had been in the room a few minutes the curtains parted and the medium came forth. She cautioned us not to speak or move during the seance, as it would bring her out of the trance and she could not go into that state again during the evening. The lights were extinguished and the medium entered the cabinet behind the curtains. We heard somebody cry 'Minnehaha! Minnehaha!' Then there was a gurgling sound and all was still. A number of spirits were brought out, before the beloved form of my daughter appeared. The spirit of the father of a young man present was produced and among other things said:

"'My son, your material prospects are good. Kansas City is blessed and [mentioning a certain real estate addition] is its most favored spot.'

"I don't know whether the young man bought any of this property or not, as I have not met him since the night of the seance, but he seemed very much impressed. After a while my dear daughter's spirit appeared and told me many things which were true, saying, among other things: 'I'm watching you continually, dear mother, and I dwell continually near—addition,' mentioning the same real estate as the spirit of the young man's father did."

At this point the lady began arguing to maintain the cause of spiritualism and attempted to convince the reporter that the doctrine was indisputably good.

The reporter called at the house of the medium, and a sprightly lass 15 years of age or thereabouts answered the bell. She said her mother, the medium, was at home, and at this juncture the lady appeared, "I have heard wonderful stories respecting the developments attendant upon your seances," said the reporter, "and at the request of my wife, who is a sanguine spiritualist, I desire to have a seance in order to be convinced of the merits of the belief, if it has any." The medium descanted upon the wonderful results of spiritualism and of the absolute genuineness of the spirits evoked by her. "I have been a medium for the past twenty years," she began, "and during my career as a medium have convinced scores of people of the truthfulness of the belief. I came from New York city, where I have been at work for the cause for many years. When I go into the cabinet my spirit leaves me and the spirit of Minnehaha, the Indian girl, takes its place and this Indian girl the spirit moves. I left New York city two months ago, impelled by the spirits, because there were too many mediums already there, to come west and work for the cause. I do not care for the money I get, but I have to charge a fee in order to live. Ministers do not work for glory and why should I? I did not know where I was going when I left New York city but the spirit having marked the name of Kansas City on our trunks we bought tickets for this city. We have crowded seances every other night. Some of the best people of this city attend my sittings. Besides being a medium I cure diseases by means of magnetic treatment."

The reporter said that he was open to conviction and if some practical test should be undergone he would the more readily believe in the doctrine. He suggested that any intimation as to practical investments in real estate would suffice.

"The spirits always look to the material advantage of the subject," said the black-eyed woman, "and many of the people attending my seances profit by the suggestions of the spirit."

The reporter requested a private seance. "I will be ready for you in a half an hour," responded the medium, and the reporter left the house. At the appointed time he returned and was then subjected to a close scrutiny by a young man whom the medium introduced as her nephew. After finishing his scrutiny he called the medium aside and consulted with her a few moments. Then the lady advanced to the reporter and said: "The spirit intimated to me, when you had departed, that you were a sceptic and without the necessary receptive capacity. Consequently I can give you no sitting."

A number of people, holding various views upon the medium's performances, were seen by the reporter. One was a preacher of an orthodox denomination, who warmly defends her and implicitly believes in spiritual direction in temporal matters.

One man, of a different type, said the black-eyed woman conjured up the spirit of his mother-in-law. He never was married and took the pains to call upon the medium next day to tell her so. "If you are not married," she retorted, "you ought to be."

DECIDEDLY ANTI-GERMAN.

Serious Demonstrations Made in the Streets of Paris.

LONDON, May 5.—The Telegraph describes the anti-German demonstration in Paris last Tuesday evening as serious. It says the mob in the neighborhood of the Eden Theater, where Wagner's "Lohengrin" was being performed, shouted: "Down with Germany," "Vive la France," "On to Berlin," "Down with Bismarck," "Give us back our clocks" (referring to Strasburg). Last evening demonstrations were renewed. A mob composed of students and gamins marched about shouting. They halted in front of the Army and Navy club and there cried out: "Vive la Armee Francaise," "Vive Boulanger," "On to Berlin." Another mob went to the building occupied by the Russian embassy shouting: "Vive la France," "Vive la Russe," "Vive l'Alliance Russo-Francaise." The leaders of this mob then proposed to their followers to march to the German embassy. The mob proceeded in the direction of the Place De La Concorde, singing the air "Lampions" to the words of the song "Nos Pendules," but it was stopped by the police and turned away before it could reach the German embassy. The mob then returned to the Place De L'Opera and there gradually dispersed.

Bad Milk Sold in Kansas City.

The sanitary officials are investigating the retail milk business of the city. City Chemist Hunter has analysed a great number of samples of milk sold in the city, and found nearly all diseased or adulterated. Cows are fed on distillery swill and glucose refuse, which causes the animals and their milk to become diseased. It is declared that a large number of deaths among infants can be traced directly to drinking this diseased milk.

More About the Coming Duel—A Jealous Wife's Crime.

Special Telegram to The Star.

CITY OF MEXICO, VIA EL PASO, May 5.—Senor Vercero Armesto is the name of the Spanish minister who cuts such a prominent figure in the prospective duel. He is comparatively new in this diplomatic field, having taken the place of Minister Cresepo, within a year. The explanation given by Armesto's friends for his his interference in the quarrel is that he had escorted Miss Bazaine to the ball, and was in duty bound to protect her good name. The lady in the case is not only pretty but occupies a very high social position. The recent attempted assassination of Marshal Bazaine in Spain serves to increase the sensational aspect of this Casino episode. Bazaine himself has not lived in Mexico himself since 1867, but he owns considerable property. The Bazaine mansion is pointed out as one of the objects of interest to all visitors' A duel or no duel, Senor Noriega has determined that the matter shall not be allowed to drop. He is busy collecting material and will leave here for Madrid to lay it before the Spanish government, starting probably Thursday evening.

Nothing has occurred in years which has so shaken up Mexican society. There is a disposition on the part of the spirited young Mexicans to take sides and become champions of one or the other of the principals. Two or three duels may develop out of the main issue. A meeting at the Spanish Casino has been called for Saturday night, when there will be a discussion of the great event. Those who side with Noriega, and they are many, say they will not stop the war on the Spanish minister, Senor Vercero Armesto, until he is recalled to Spain. The trouble at the ball, they claim, is only one of several grievances against Armesto. An understanding is said to have been arrived at between Barron and Noriega, between whom the first difficulty arose, and there will be no duel between them as principals. Noriega was on the reception committee and his caution to Barron about his style of dancing is defended on the score of his official position. A great deal of sympathy is expressed for Miss Bazaine on account of the unfortunate notoriety she has received from the affair. There was no impropriety in her dancing. The trouble was all among the gentlemen.

JEALOUSY AND MURDER.

Guadalouzse Mondragon, of Culiacan in Sinaloa, a remarkably handsome young Indian woman, recently became insanely jealous of her husband, Juan Isadel. The latter arrived home in a maudlin condition at 3 o'clock one morning last week. His wife accused him of unfaithfulness. He was too drunk to deny and the woman construed his silence into a confession of guilt. In her fury she set upon him with a poniard and never hesitated until he lay dead at her feet. Remorse came upon her and she fled to the police headquarters and told her story. When she concluded she became a raving maniac.

BRUTALLY BUTCHERED.

"Harry" Fritz Cuts a Helpless Woman's Throat at St. Louis.

Special Telegram to The Star.

ST. LOUIS, May 5.—A man cut a girl's throat this morning in a house of ill repute at 125 Poplar street. She called him her lover, and did all she could to save him from the consequences of his cowardly act. He had been in her company yesterday and last night had taken her hack-riding and had purchased and presented her with some new clothing. He had also bought her refreshments during the night, and then when morning came, as she sat beside him in the room, he plunged a pocket knife into her throat and dragged an ugly gash along her neck, in evident search for some vital point.

The poor girl's name is Minnie Wilson. Yesterday at 5 o'clock in the evening she called at 125 Poplar street and asked the landlady, Mary Belle, to take her as a "boarder." The Belle woman keeps both houses, 123 and 125 Poplar street. One of her girls, Annie Logan by name, spoke well of Minnie and Mary Belle took her in. Henry Fritz was with her and both had been drinking heavily. During the night "Harry," as Minnie Wilson called him, made frequent incursions into the saloons of the neighborhood and returned with beer. The landlady was displeased at this, but the girl pleaded that "Harry" would leave town to-morrow. This morning at 9 o'clock Minnie came out of her room onto the rear porch that connects the two houses and held a conversation with Mary Belle. She then returned to her room and in a few moments Fritz came down stairs and went out. Annie Logan passed the room a moment later and Minnie called her:

"Oh, have you any court plaster?"

"What do you want with court plaster?" Annie answered and stepping into the room saw Minnie standing on the floor and endeavoring to staunch the flow of blood that gushed in spurts from a gash in the right side of her neck. The poor girl said she and "Harry" Fritz had a fight and he cut her.

The police were immediately called and Fritz was placed under arrest. He claimed he used no knife, but only his fingers, and said he cut the girl because she stole his money, and said she was his wife's sister. The wounded girl was taken to the hospital and at last accounts was reported dying.

CONSTERNATION AND TERROR.

An Antique New Mexican Village Stirred up by an Earthquake.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., May 5.—The earthquake shocks at Sibinal, forty miles south of Albuquerque, were much more severe than here. Two tremors were felt both in a northeast and southwest direction. Something in the atmosphere added a sensation of suffocation to the feeling of awful suspense. This was broken by a terrible vibration which created the utmost consternation among the inhabitants and men, women and children rushed precipitately into the streets, in numerous cases only in time to escape with their lives from the tottering buildings. Sibinal is one of the ancient relics of New Mexican antiquity, and the adobe dwellings of the natives were so weakened by age as to fall an easy prey to the earthquake. A number of them are leveled to the ground.

The El Paso Shocks.

EL PASO, Tex., May 5.—Besides the big shock at 3:15 p. m. Tuesday, at least four other shocks have been felt, one about 11 a. m. Tuesday, and one about 5 p. m. One at 6:30 Tuesday evening was felt very distinctly by persons on the second floors of buildings.

THE LOUISVILLE CONVENTION.

Mr. Taulbee Again Interposes Objections—Nominations.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5.—The Democratic State convention resumed its session this morning with Mr. Carlisle in the chair. A discussion of resolutions and platform was at once taken up and Congressman Taulbee at once objected to the clause relating to President Cleveland's veto of the pensions bill and there was a lively discussion between Taulbee and Hon. James McKenzie, the present Secretary of State. Taulbee was finally sat upon by the convention, and the resolutions as drawn up by Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Watterson, and as sent to the Associated Press yesterday, were finally adopted. Hon. James W. Bryan of Covington was nominated for lieutenant governor on the first ballot.

The following additional nominations were made by the convention: P. W. Hardin, of Mercer county, attorney general; General Lafayette Hewitt, of Hardin, auditor; Richard Tate, of Franklin, treasurer.

NEW YORK, May 5.—A sensational cowhiding affair took place at the corner of Market and Washington streets, Newark, N. J., at midnight last night. At that hour a well-dressed young woman drove up in a buggy and pulling up to the curbstone got out and walked up to a fashionably dressed young man who stood puffing a cigar on the corner.

"Come here, I want you," said she.

The young man shook his head and smiled provokingly. The young woman seized a horse-whip and laid the lash around his shoulders with a will. The victim at first laughed, but as the blows fell faster he began to beg for mercy, crying, "For God's sake stop and let up."

After lashing the man till her arm was tired the young woman paused and said:

"Now will you come with me?"

The young man went meekly with his fair captor. It is said that he was guilty of making love to another girl.

Five Killed.

WILMINGTON, May 5.—This morning six negro boys, aged 13 to 17 years, were at the wharf of the Wilmington compress, preparing to get across Cape Fear river to shoot rice birds. One named Grant Best had borrowed a double barreled gun from a negro, which he says had no cap on the tubes, and he did not know it was loaded. While in the act of blowing out one of the tubes, the hammer fell and one barrel was discharged, killing him instantly. Edward Smith and B. Fillayaw; and Ben Conoly and Edward Fillayaw were shot and died soon after. Another boy named George Best was wounded in both arms but it is likely he will recover.

MUST DIE AWFUL DEATHS.

ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY IMPRISONED MINERS AT NANIAMO, B. C.

Heartrending Scenes About the Mouth of a Shaft—A Number of Unfortunates Rescued, but no Hope for the Rest—Fire Adds Horror to the Scene.

NANIAMO, B. C., May 5.—The terrible explosion which occurred at 6 o'clock last evening, in No. 1 shaft of the Victoria rail company's mine, has made countless widows and orphans, and intense sorrow prevails.

Of the 150 men known to have been in the mine at the time the awful holocaust occurred, up to midnight, but twelve bodies had been recovered. Some were dead when taken out and others were seriously or fatally burned. The hope of rescuing, alive, any of those yet in the mine, is slim indeed and it is believed before the rescuing party can be able to get to work properly so as to make any kind of rapid progress, the entire number of imprisoned miners will have perished. The party who attempted a rescue last night were utterly unable to do anything owing to the black damp, and almost as soon as they went down were compelled to come up again to avoid immediate suffocation. S. Hudson, one of the rescuing party, died shortly after coming out and soon afterward the mine caught fire.

The scenes around the shaft, during the attempt at rescue, were heartrending in the extreme, and the wild paroxysms of grief manifested by men, women and children increased ten-fold when the mine was discovered to be on fire. A special train with surgeons arrived from Victoria at 2 o'clock this morning and every aid possible is being rendered.

Ten white men and seven Chinamen have been taken out of the mine. Six men are dead. There are now imprisoned in the mine ninety white men of different nationalities and fifty Chinamen. It is feared that all will perish of suffocation. Samuel Hudson, who went down to rescue friends, died from the effects of the damp. His brave deeds were among the bright things in the carnival of misery. Gangs of men have been endeavoring to extinguish the flames in No. 1 shaft and these are believed now to be under control. A hand fire engine has been taken down into the mine where it is fighting the fire. It is absolutely impossible to get at the imprisoned men till the fire is subdued, for if more air were sent in it would force the gas into the fire and cause a second disaster.

Even now fears are entertained that the whole place will be blown up, and old miners say such a result is possible. All that can be done is being done to reach the imprisoned men. The rescuers thought first of cutting a ditch to salt water so as to attempt to put out the fire in No. 2 shaft by turning the stream of water into it, but the scheme was abandoned, as it would only flood the mine and would banish any hope of saving the lives of the men.

A black pall hangs over the city. The business houses are all closed, collieries are shut up, and the entire population is gathered at the scene of the disaster. Terror-stricken wives and children and sorrowing fathers hover in the vicinity and mourn their terrible affliction. It is almost impossible that any can have survived.

The cause of the explosion is unknown. It is generally supposed to be an explosion of coal dust. It was thought this morning that the fire in the air shaft had been extinguished and that a small body of flame exists between the air and main shafts, which may be conquered, when an attempt will be made to bring the air in and begin the work of rescue. The late shift that came up reported hearing a pick striking on the opposite side of the wall. There is a feeling that where there is life there is hope, but that hope is unfortunately faint.

DEVASTATING WINDS.

The Frightful Storm Which Swept Over Pennsylvania—In Michigan.

PITTBURG, April 5.—A terrific thunderstorm, accompanied by heavy hail and wind, equal to a hurricane, passed over the Allegheny mountains, in eastern Somerset and western Bedford counties, between 7 and 8 o'clock last evening. A few minutes before the storm came, a roaring like the discharge of many cannous was heard in the distance and as soon as the clouds rolled across the sky the roaring increased. The storm struck the mountains, moving in a northwesterly direction and was about a quarter of a mile wide. For two miles large trees were twisted off like straws and everything in its path brought to earth.

In some instances trees were caught up and carried several hundred feet into the air and brought back again with a swiftness that cannot be described. The lightning was fearful and struck a barn belonging to a man named Burnham, living on the mountain, and totally demolished it, the wind carrying away what portions the lightning did not destroy. The hail fell in stones as large as eggs and vegetation of all kinds suffered severely. The damage to fruit trees and timber will amount to thousands of dollars.

In Michigan.

MARQUETTE, Mich., May 5.—A terrific wind swept over the upper peninsula Monday afternoon, completely prostrating telegraph and telephone wires and doing great damage. Many buildings were unroofed, chimneys demolished and railroad travel badly interrupted by fallen trees. At Norway John Coleman was killed by a falling tree. At Quinnesse, the Masonic hall and firemen's building was demolished. At Iron Mountain great damage was done to houses. It is believed that when communication is restored reports of general havoc will be received from all quarters.

HANGED.

Peter Smith Launched Into Eternity at New York this Morning.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Peter Smith was hanged in the yard of the Tombs prison this morning. The procession from the cell of the prisoner reached the scaffold at 7:25 o'clock. The noose was adjusted, Smith kissed the crucifix, and at 7:30 the drop fell. Death was instantaneous. The body was lowered into the coffin sixteen minutes later.

HIS CRIME.

John Hannon, 28 years old, was employed as watchman at the foot of East Thirty-eighth street. Hannon's mother testified that her dying son told her that Smith had a grudge of long standing against Hannon, and that on the evening of April 7, 1885, the condemned man and a companion named Alexander Sweeny came down on the dock, and that the former shot him. Smith was entrapped into admitting that he had fired the shot, but said that it was accidental. Both Smith and Sweeny were indicted for murder in the first degree. Smith was convicted and sentenced, and after a stay and affirming the righteousness of the verdict by the court of appeals Smith was a second time sentenced to be hanged.

This morning was the first Thursday in the history of the state on which capital punishment has been carried out

A Dead Whisky Pool.

CHICAGO, May 5.—The Western Export association met at the Grand Pacific yesterday, and the session was a stormy one and did not result in moderating the existing inequalities caused by the refusal of some houses to enter a pool on the terms prescribed by the association. Two houses in Ohio, one in Indiana, and one in Illinois refused to enter the pool. They therefore decided to pay no assessments, pay no closed houses for the coming month, and to reduce the price on whisky from $1.13 per gallon to $1.05, decreasing the income of the pool $12,000 per day. The pool is virtually inoperative although the officers still hold it intact.

The Rumored Dynamite Outrages.

Special Telegram to The Star.

NEW YORK, May 5.—All efforts to interview O'Donovan Rossa, the ex-dynamiter, about the report of a series of dynamite outrages to be inaugurated in Ireland during the Queen's jubilee proved futile. Rossa declared that he had enough and did not want to be mixed up in the present agitations. A prominent member of the Clan na Gael indignantly denied that that organization countenanced any such diabolical scheme as reported in the papers. All such talk came from a few cranks who wanted to create a scare. Meanwhile according to the dispatches there is a great deal of alarm in England over the rumors.

THE HAWAIIAN PARTY.

Their Reception at the White House—Mrs. Cleveland's Call.

Special Telegram to The Star.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The following are the details of the arrival and reception of the Hawaiian royal party. The Hawaiian queen and princess royal with their party breakfasted yesterday morning promptly at 8 o'clock on coffee, rolls, porter-house steak and omelets. Their meals were served in the queen's private parlor at the Arlington. All the party use English or Hawaiian indiscriminately in addressing each other.

Promptly at 12 o'clock three carriages, containing the queen, the princess, General Dominis, Governor Iaukea, Colonel Boyd, Minister and Mrs. Carter and Lieutenant Rogers, United States navy, drew up at the White House. The Secretary of State met them. Mr. Carter assisted her majesty to alight and led the way with her to the blue parlor under the escort of Mr. Adee, third assistant secretary of state, the others following in the order of their rank. The queen wore a trained dress of black satin bordered with gold embroidery and the front a mass of the same. A rich black lace scarf was draped on her shoulders and she wore a small black bonnet. On her breast was a jeweled order with the Hawaiian colors pendant from it. Princess Lininakiani entered on the arm of General Dominis, her husband, dressed in crape, mourning for the Princess Lininakiani, her late sister. Mrs. Carter wore a carriage dress of black satin. Minister Carter and the attaches of the legation wore full court dress. The Secretary of State had left them a moment previous and notified the President and Mrs. Cleveland that the royal party had arrived. With the secretary they stood waiting in the parlor of state and the Queen and party were presented by Minister Carter.

Mrs. Cleveland wore a simple but elegant dress of white China crepe with bands of gold embroidery. The room was lavishly decorated with flowers and ferns. The reception was by daylight and lasted from ten to fifteen minutes. It was very cordial and unstately. Secretary Bayard escorted the visitors to their carriages on leaving.

Immediately on returning to the Arlington the party lunched. Before they had concluded, Forepaugh's circus parade appeared in sight, and they all sprang to the windows and watched it till the last chariot had disappeared. At 2 o'clock Mrs. Cleveland, accompanied by Mrs. Fairchild, Mrs. Endicott, Mrs. Whitney and Mrs. Vilas called on the Queen and princess. They were pleasantly impressed with the dark-browed dignitaries, noting particularly their intelligent and agreeable expression and the innate majesty of the queen's bearing. Mrs. Cleveland invited her majesty and the princess verbally to dine with the President and herself Friday evening, with the other members of their party. At 3 o'clock a drive was taken about the city, which included a call at the National college for the deaf and dumb, where the annual exercises of presentation day were in progress. Subsequently the capitol and prominent buildings were visited. The day was excessively warm. At 7 o'clock the Hawaiian guests dined with Minister and Mrs. Carter. After dinner fifty or more ladies and gentlemen who had met the king, queen and nobility of Hawaiian, in Honolulu, came in for the evening by invitation.

Grant's Memoirs.

By Mark Twain.

People may hunt out what microscopic moles they please, but after all, the fact remains and cannot be dislodged, that General Grant's book is a great (and in its department) unique and unapproachable literary masterpiece. In their line there is no higher literature than those modest, simple "Memoirs." Their style is at least flawless, and no man can improve upon it; and great books are weighed and measured by their style and matter, not by the trimmings and shading of the grammar. There is that about the sun which makes us forget his poles, and when we think of General Grant our pulses quicken and his grammar vanishes; we only remember that this is the simple soldier who, all untaught of the silken phrase-maker, linked words together with an art surpassing the art of the schools, and put into them a something which will still bring to American ears, as long as America shall last, the roll of his vanishing drums and the tread of his marching hosts."

FORT SCOTT, Kan., May 5.—Burglars entered the residence of Charles Stith, in this city, last night, and extended their search to the sleeping apartment occupied by Mr. Stith and wife and child. Mr. Stith resisted and a struggle ensued, during which one of the burglars used a revolver, striking Mr. Stith with the butt of it and threatening to shoot unless he became quiet. A third burglar entered the room and the three together overpowered Mr. Stith and his wife, who had come to the rescue, and seizing the money, fled, one of them firing a shot which took effect in their victim's knee.

General Market Summary.

Furnished by Norton & Worthington.

There was a general improvement of wheat values in the Chicago market this morning, ranging from ⅝ to ⅞c for the different futures. As usual of late, the strong supporting force has been large, buying for clique account, it being estimated that their netted purchases to-day of June and July aggregated something like 3,000,000 bushels. Seaboard markets were strong and St. Louis bouyant, while foreign advices reported an upward tendency across the Atlantic. The demand for cash stuff from both the continent and the United Kingdom is unusually good, and this fact gives the long interest a powerful assistance in advancing values.

Corn fell off about ⅜@½c, closing rather weak at nearly bottom quotations for the session. Although receipts are not large the market remains heavy, and an advance in lake freights, which seems probable, would at once have an unfavorable bearing upon values.

Oats were quite active, weak and lower, June delivery declining half a cent and closing weak.

Provisions opened moderately higher, but ruled very dull and closed slow at opening prices.

Estimated receipts of hogs for 24 hours, 15,000; official yesterday, 15,279; shipments, 3,754; left over, 6,000; quality fair, light grades selling at $4.80@5.25; heavy mixed packing, $5.10@5.35; heavy packing and shipping, $5.30@5.50.

Yesterday's inspection: Wheat, 51 cars; corn, 106 cars, 16,600 bushels; oats, 68 cars; rye, 7 cars; barley, 15 cars; out wheat, 75,397 bu.; corn, 134,757 bu.

Estimated receipts for to-morrow—Wheat 74 cars; corn, 92; oats, 75; hogs, 16,000. Official statement—Eighteen loads of wheat were sold at New York for export. Clearances were 138,126 bu. of wheat and 45,184 bu. of corn.

SUNNYSIDE, THE BEAUTIFUL.

The sunshine which plays upon Sunnyside all the year round is but a single item of its many attractions. Its water supply, its nearness to gas mains and its natural claim to being high, dry and healthfully located on a prettily timbered slope may all be almost ignored. But you can't afford to scoff at a residence addition which has the elevated road running through it. That will make you mind, mark well the words. Talk to W. L. BARRETT,
Odd Fellows' building. Wyandotte.

ARBOR day was observed in Boston. The Governor and mayor took an active part planting white pines in the commons. Seventy trees were planted in the commons during the day. Has cultured Boston been going for all these years with her commons deficient of seventy shade trees?

VERY few men know anything more about "the wonders of the world," or who know it more certainly, than JOSEPH COOK, of Boston-Monday-lecture fame. After being here for several days, looking the ground over and making comparisons, he pronounced Kansas City to be "the eighth wonder of the world." Of course he is "correctly right."

A RELIGIOUS daily newspaper entitled the Penny Press has been started in New York City. About printing things unclean it can exercise its own discretion and censorship, but it certainly should use great caution in announcing that "it has come to stay." The number seen was silly and disgustingly sloppy and did not promise length of days based on merit.

THE thoroughfares leading to and from the city have been neglected until they are in a miserable condition. The present street commissioner will take them in hand and improve them so that travel over them will no longer be the disagreeable feature that it used to be. It is important to both those who live in the city and the country that all the thoroughfares leading to and from the city should be kept in perfect repair, and this seems to be the idea of the commissioner.

DANGER signals are important all along the journey of life; and it is especially desirable that they be conspicuously displayed at night in this city wherever the streets are obstructed by repairs or the materials of new buildings. There is an ordinance requiring that this be done, and the authorities are showing commendable interest in having it executed. Parties interested will find that it is cheaper to hang out the red light than to pay costs and fines for neglecting to do so.

A MAJORITY of the leading newspapers of the country have expressed their opinions on the experiment of woman suffrage as exercised at the late municipal elections in Kansas. There are two classes of opinions on the matter, and they both seem to have been biased by the predilections of the journals expressing them. Those newspapers that believe in the right of woman suffrage declare that the experiment was a success, while those that oppose woman suffrage hold that it was a failure. And so the agitation goes on. Different eyes looking at the same object bring in different reports about it. Much depends on the points of view from which the object is seen.

THE New York Herald has never been regarded as a reliable political prophet, but it is always in the "prophecy business." It has predicted that the Democratic ticket for 1888 will be CLEVELAND and GRADY. Anybody can guess the first part of the ticket. It will certainly be CLEVELAND. The ingenuity of the prophet must be confined entirely to the second part of the ticket. Party necessity and public opinion have not yet named the man for the second place. It may be GRADY, or it may not. There is nothing about his career that proclaims him an inevitable necessity to the success of the Democratic party. In the case of CLEVELAND some such conditions do exist. Without him as standard bearer in 1888 the party would be greatly weakened.

THE Democrats of Kentucky were in session in state convention yesterday. They were true to their Bourbon proclivities, but were in a dilemma as to how to handle President CLEVELAND. They dared not repudiate him and yet in that convention it was not safe to propose a wholesale endorsement of his course. In this perplexity of the convention political diplomacy prevailed, and a resolution was passed indorsing his honesty and commending his economical endeavors; but in effect the resolution dissented from his views on the silver question and the civil service law. Such is the plain reading between the lines. The resolution may have been discreet and polite from a party sense, but is was certainly wanting in courage. It may be large enough for a plank in a state platform, but it would not do for a declaration of the party in national convention. This is an off year in politics and a state may be indulged in some political eccentricities, but out of self-respect it should keep this side of the verge of stultification. Kentucky should not exalt its individual opinions too high, for the Democrats of the state will certainly support the national Democratic ticket in 1888, no matter what the complexion of the platform of principles may be. People can eat crow, but healthy palates do not relish it.

SMALL plans will not do when a comprehensive structure is to be erected, nor will dwarfed legislation answer when a question of great importance is to come under its enlargement or limitations. A little sanitary measure is being worked up for the city, which proposes an addition of five or six health police officers. This is but carrying out the old idea of trusting the cleaning of the city to individual efforts. The plan never has worked with any sort of efficiency and it will not do so now. The nature of people does not change, and it is as true now as it ever has been, that what is everybody's business is nobody's business. The appointment of a few men to act as garbage inspectors, or as a city smelling committee, does not meet the demands of the citizens of Kansas City. What is wanted here is a complete and thorough system of sanitation, one that will keep the city cleansed from sewer and cellar to the garret. Any sanitary measure that will do less than this is a mere makeshift and the public opinion of the city will not be satisfied with it. City council will be wise if it earnestly and intelligently addresses itself at once to the important work of providing for Kansas City a thorough system of sanitary regulation. The completion of such a work would be a blessing to the city and an honor to the council. What better record could the present city council make for itself than to have it written: "The council of Kansas City in 1887 made the public health its first consideration?"

EVENING.

The sun goes down behind the purple sea,
The gray clouds float across the crimson west;
Shadowless, shapeless, and in slow unrest,
Across the west they wander silently.
The night, in solemn state and majesty,
Is throned behind the eastern ocean's breast,
Wrapped like an eagle in a secret nest,
Waiting the hour when his strong wings are free.
The evening smiles—a smile of dying hope;
A host of silver may come with the night,
Or thunders of the writhing sky may ope,
And wake the sleeping earth again to fight.
Which shall it be? Oh! Prophet, can thy scope
Find Delphic warnings in yon dying light?

Saving Kansas To Freedom.

Eli Thayer in Boston Herald.

If further testimony be needed to show the power of the Emigrant Aid Company in Kansas, it can be found in quantities almost without limit in the Congressional Globe, in the reports of congressional committees, in thousands upon thousands of letters from Kansas settlers to their friends, in the editorials of all the southern and of nearly all the northern journals, in the reports of thousands of election speeches, and in all contemporaneous and general records of whatever kind. The work of saving Kansas was done before the eyes of the world. We said we would do it and stop the making of slave states. We also laid down our methods; we went on just as we had promised and used the methods proposed, and accomplished the results aimed at without the aid of politicians and in spite of the active hostility of the abolitionists. No man, unless he is ignorant of the facts in the Kansas struggle, or is completely blinded by malice or envy, will ever attempt to defraud the Emigrant Aid Company of the glory of saving Kansas by defeating the slave power in a great and decisive contest.

The Emigrant Aid company aroused the patriotism of the friends of freedom to such an extent that they heroically made their own bodies a barrier against the spread of slavery. This was the first organized physical resistance that the "black power" had ever met. Political parties had fired off resolutions for fifty years and more against the spread of slavery; and sentimental organizations had fired off resolutions for twenty-five years against the existence of slavery. These paper pellets had produced no more effect upon the castellated bastions of the "black power" than cannon wads, without shot, would have produced upon an adamantine fortress.

The Kansas pioneers from the north were neither talkers nor resolution makers. With thorough organization, with steam engines, churches and schools, and relying upon the company at their former home for all needed aid in money, influence or arms, they advanced to their great work like heroes, and were triumphant. The New England Emigrant Aid company was a revelation which made a revolution in this country. Its charter contained the emancipation proclamation as the acorn contains the oak. It made Mr. Lincoln President, and enabled the present authors of his life, while "a-loafin' round the throne," to prepare to inflict upon the country so crude "a history."

But there is not space enough in your paper for a full discussion of this subject. The place for this is in the book which I am now preparing; in that this entire matter will be fully treated and abundant proof furnished to sustain every position taken.

New Styles in Canes.

From the Detroit Tribune.

"No change in canes? Ah, that's where you are mistaken," said Mr. Smith. "There are few mere accessories of dress that changes more frequently than canes, as any young man who keeps well up with the fashion can tell you, for I'll wager he has stored away in closet or hall a collection of some ten or fifteen which are out of style. A man to be in fashion changes his cane as he does the style of his spring coat or a lady does her bonnet.

"Just now large canes are the swell thing—the larger the better. A policeman's club would be the correct size if it was lengthened out, or a stick of cordwood. Another singular fact is, the smaller the man the larger is the cane he carries. Large crooked handles are also the style. They are of fancy silver—that is, a deposit of silver over wood—of buckhorn or ivory. The buckhorn is an old revival in cane handles, and was very popular, combined with hickory, during Johnson's administration.

"One style follows another. The rattan was popular thirty years ago. Then there was the ebony, or rosewood, with solid, fancy, gold and silver handles or knobs. Hammered antique was immensely popular last year, and brought prices as high as $10 and $12. Old gentlemen stick to the solid round knob. It is easy to grasp and gives a firm support. Rattans! Oh, they went out of use with the dudes. Nobody carries a rattan now. I doubt if one could be found in the market, and as for carrying one, a man would as soon carry a riding-whip as one of those supple, pliant sticks. The frisky business went out with the dude. Now it's the fashion to plant the cane solidly down with every step.

"There is fashion in carrying a cane also. There was a time when a gentleman carried his cane directly in front of him, the head of it just under his chin. The lighter cane was swung around to the discomfort of every one on the street, but this was no worse than the way some had of carrying it under the arm, the end protruding a half yard to the imminent danger of those back of it. Others again clasp the stick in the middle, never letting it touch the ground, but the cane now in style is too heavy to cut pigeon wings with, and those who carry it must walk with more dignity."

Prescott and Motley.

E. P. Whipple's New Book.

Prescott calmly represents; Motley intensely feels. Prescott is on a watch-tower surveying the battle; Motley plunges into the thickest of the fight. In temperament no two historians could be more apart; in judgment they are identical. As both historians are equally incapable of lying, Motley finds it necessary to overload his narrative with details which justify his vehemence, while Prescott can afford to omit them on account of his reputation for a benign impartiality between the opposing parties.

THE PARIS HORSE SHOW.

The Art of Riding, Long Neglected in France Now the Rage.

The Paris horse show, having entered upon its twenty-first year, may now be said to have attained its majority, writes a Paris correspondent of the New York Mail and Express. It was organized by the French Hippical society which was established in 1866 by the elegant Marquis de Mornay, for the purpose of improving the breed of hacks and draught horses, and of bringing the producer into more direct communication with the purchaser, just as the Jockey club was started fifty years ago for improving blood. In its infancy it had the greatest difficulty in organizing a show with $10,000 in prizes. Its control now rediates all over France, where, besides Paris it has five large annual exhibitions at Bordeaux, Nantes, Lyons, Lille, and Nancy. Last year it distributed $65,174 in prizes. Under the empire the number of platforms erected were about sufficient to accommodate five hundred persons; but the number of visitors has grown to be so large of late years that six thousand seats have to be provided, besides standing room for three to four thousand persons. With two exceptions, when, in 1857 and 1878, on account of the Paris international exhibitions, it had to seek a refuge on the esplanade of the Invalides, the Paris horse show has invariably been held in the broad arena offered by the whole nave of the Palace of Industry. The proceedings last about a fortnight, and bring together all the amateurs of horsemanship throughout the country.

While some of the horses entered do not, perhaps, come up to the full standard of excellence as expected at these exhibitions, yet on the whole the show is an exceedingly good one, and the average quality of the horses exhibited superior to that of former years. The slap-dash jumping tilts, which are among the first exhibits, are certainly amusing; but they are put in the shade by the "park riding"—the riding by gentlemen for the promenade. The riders were but poorly mounted. It is a mystery to me why horses that are broken in, or supposed to be so, should be so hampered with martingales. It would be reasonable if the steeds had not been rough-ridden in their time, as those exhibited evidently were, and it seemed that the useless harness could have readily been dispensed with or, if at all needed, at least fitted with rings. Within the last few years riding has been taken up in Paris by young men, the sons of wealthy parents, and it is now in some families considered as one of the fine arts. Consequently, improvement has been made. Men whom we see riding in the Champs Elysees and in Boulogne wood sit better in their saddles than they used to do fifteen years ago, and as a rule they ride with their stirrup strap at a convenient length. Lady riders are not included. The test, after all, is an ordinary one, being confined to the rudimentary arts of the walk, trot and canter. It is plain sailing simply. No trials are imposed as to skill in controlling the movements of the horse by the hand and heel in the higher and fancy evolutions. That kind of riding in which the French excel, the haute ecole, or high school, can not be exhibited at the Paris horse show, owing to the loss of dignity that would be involved in a competition with the neighboring summer circus. And yet I remember last year a military veteran, who, to the amazement of all present, led his steed through a variety of the most intricate evolutions and received his bunch of streaming ribbons amid thunders of applause. The management of the French horse for fancy purposes is carried to great perfection, and, though he yields to the dullest of hunters at a fence, he may challenge any without fear of the result to a polka. The circus folk talk with great reverence of the marvels Paris has to show in this line. And in this connection it is to be regretted that Mr. Mackenzie-Grieves, the rider with the best seat in Paris, perhaps in Europe, especially for such purposes as an appearance in the park, will be hardly likely to compete. No man has carried to such perfection "the coquetry of the saddle." The rider and horse are one, and there is such an air of perfect breeding in the pair that they have the honors of a kind of private "concours hippique" all to themselves in the Champs Elysees every day.

The art of riding has, in fact, been too much neglected in France, where the great responsibility attaching to equestrian performance in the open street has never had its due weight in the public conscience. But the number of good riders is increasing and soon the public opinion of the Bois will be too strong for the "tailors." The example set by M. de Lesseps in this respect is not the least of his public services. He is a brilliant rider, and is said to have first won his way to the heart of Ismail Pasha by his daring in taking a stone wall, and to have obtained his firman for the Suez canal before the favorable impression had worn off. Every day in fine weather he takes his gallop, with his youthful family by his side, in a beautiful diminuendo of babies and ponies. His system is to go straight on, betide what may to the babies. If one tumbles off its nag along the road it picks itself up again and overtakes him as best it can. He attributes not only his first success in life to his love of the saddle, but all the successes reaped by him during his long career; he gallops away his troubles and keeps himself in good spirits by exercise. Dull care cannot keep up with him. "It is the pace that kills."

Tennyson at Home.

From a London Letter.

Every now and then curious little stories leak out about Lord Tennyson's life and habits. Tennyson's home in the Isle of Wight is a modest one; he has only one man servant in the house, but it is as comfortable and pleasant as most households of the same class. It is the poet's manners and customs which give it its individuality. It is understood that visitors do not disturb the great man's ways, and that he behaves in precisely the same manner when he has company as when he has not. Every morning, in hail, rain or snow, the poet dons his frouzy cap and his frouzier slouch hat and promenades for an hour or so, none daring to disturb him. Every day at dinner a bottle of port is placed before the host, and Tennyson retires with it (generally when desert comes on) and leaves his guests at the table. The poet is to be found in his study with his bottle by his side and a huge dock glass holding a pint. This is filled half with port and half with water, and the bard solemnly fills and refills till bottle and glass are empty.

The Working Girls' Guilds of New York.

The working girls' guilds of New York, writes a correspondent, have sprung into sudden life and growth. Three years ago, to the best of my knowledge, the city had not one. There are six or eight to-day, with three or four across the river in Brooklyn, and two or three in Jersey City beside. Miss Grace H. Dodge, the school commissioner, is the moving spirit of them all and has made them stand for self-help, study, and mutual good will. The guilds have 3,000 members at the least, and their continued organization means growing intelligence where it is needed most, a half dozen libraries started in as many club-rooms, pleasant places for evening resort, with now and then a lecture and a simple tea, and. last but not least, women physicians regularly employed to give skillful service to all that need.

PIGEON FLYING.

A Talk With an Expert About Famous Carriers.

A carrier pigeon was found dead in a farmyard at Chester, Va., the other day, writes a New York correspondent. The finder did not know a carrier from any other kind of pigeon, but as he was idly examining the bird he noticed a little tag attached to the feathers. On this was written these figures: 0563, and the words: "If caught or shot report this number to Starr, New York." It was a good deal of mystery still to the finder, but after speaking to a few friends about it he found one who knew that the bird was a carrier and had been sent out on a race. A message was accordingly sent to "Starr, New York," as requested on the tag. "Starr, New York," is a little woman who devotes herself to the interest of pigeon-flying and keeps the run of about all the birds in the country. To find her one has to climb four dark flights to the top of a rickety old building at the corner of Cortlandt and Washington streets. As she is an enthusiast upon the subject, visitors who want to learn anything about pigeons find a ready welcome and no little information. All pigeon-flyers, and their number is increasing every year, send her accounts of their birds, and, in the event of a race the birds themselves are sometimes sent also to be registered. But as a rule she is notified as soon as a bird is hatched, and she makes such entries in her ponderous record books as fix that bird's identity until he dies of old age or is shot by some careless hunter. When she received word that 0563 had been picked up dead, she referred to her books, and found that one of the most remarkable birds in the land had been lost. To be sure all the pigeon fliers had given this bird up months ago, for it had not been heard of since last October, but no one knew what became of it.

The bird was owned by William Bennett, of Newark, N. J., one of the centers of pigeon-flying interest. The bird has not been named. It was a blue male and was hatched in the spring in 1886. It had been in three races, in one of which it was among the six that made the best record to Newark, and the feat was second only to the best young fly-bird in America. The best record was made by Philadelphia pigeons in 1883. In the case of 0563 the start was made at Liberty, Va., from which place to Newark it is 368 miles, air-line. The birds were liberated at twenty-five minutes past 6 o'clock in the morning of Oct. 1, 1886, and the first bird to report at its loft in Newark arrived at fourteen minutes past 1 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day. A few minutes later 0563 came in, and his average speed for the journey was 1,099 yards a minute. About a week later this bird, with three others, was taken to Morgantown, N. C., 527 miles from home. None of them were heard from until Mrs. Starr received the report of the death of 0563.

Mrs. Starr thinks that pigeon-flying has come to be a standard gentleman's sport in America. At present the amusement is free from all objectionable features, and as each year passes improvements are made in the methods of keeping the record of the birds. New books have been opened this spring which in a few years will be of great value to lovers of the sport, for they will contain the minutest details of all birds that live long enough to make a record in a race. But the most important change this season is in the device for marking the birds. It was formerly done by marking the feathers and attaching a tag, but henceforth a light, seamless band of silver-plated nickel will be put around the bird's leg, every bird sent out from Mrs. Starr's headquarters having a different number inscribed on it. This band is slipped over a pigeon's foot as soon as it is hatched, and so rapidly do the birds grow that in eight days the band could neither be removed or a smaller one put on. Yet it is never too small for the leg and in no way does it act to the discomfort to the flier. Speaking of the general subject of pigeon, flying, Mrs. Starr said:

"I think you would be surprised if you knew how many people keep birds for the actual work of carrying messages. A great many men in all of the large cities take birds with them to their offices, and at some period of the day, when they have occasion to send word home they attach a message to the pigeon and release it. But I suppose that the principal incentive to the cultivation of message birds is for racing. Although young birds, those hatched within the year, often make good records, I am inclined to think that a pigeon does not become fully mature until it is 10 years old. They then seem to have the maximum of sense and speed. In this country we have a great deal of trouble with hunters. If they would only let the birds alone we would loose very few from any other cause. Pigeons are on record that won races at the age of 20. In Belgium a great deal of attention is paid to flying, and the birds are highly cultivated and live to a considerable age."

"Is special training required to make good race birds?"

"No; but previous to each racing season the birds are trained by making them practice short distance flies. They are taken ten miles or so from home and liberated. This kind of training is just beginning in preparation for the races of the coming season, of which there will be many and good ones."

THE RIVAL OF SUGAR.

The New Sweet, "Saccharine," a Distinctly American Discovery.

Considerable attention has been directed lately to the discovery of a sweetening substance promising to rival sugar. Fahlberg, a German chemist, has claimed the honor of the discovery and has taken considerable credit to himself from the scientific and general public for the originality and value of his discovery. The following letter of Prof. Ira Remsen, of John Hopkins university of Baltimore, to the New York Times will be read with interest:

The substance which has come into prominence of late under the name of "saccharine" was discovered in the laboratory of the John Hopkins University under the following circumstances: Fahlberg was working here six or seven years ago as an advanced student. At his request I assigned a problem to him for original investigation. This investigation he afterward carried on under my guidance. When the work was completed I wrote an article giving an account of the results obtained and published it in the report of the German Chemical Society, placing Fahlberg's name with mine at the head of the article. Afterward I published a fuller account of the investigation in the American Chemical Journal, again crediting Fahlberg with his share of the work by placing his name with mine at the head of the article. In other articles benzoic sulphinide, the new famous sweet substance, was fully described and its marked sweetness commented upon. Soon after this Fahlberg left the laboratory, and, as now appears, has occupied himself to some extent with the further investigation of the sulphinide. This he did without consulting me. He has also taken out patents covering the methods of preparation which we first made use of here, and has not consulted me in regard to this. In all his statements regarding the substance in question he strives to make the impression that the discovery is his, and in most references to it in print he is given sole credit. I think it is time that I protest in the interest of truth and justice. Fahlberg carried out my directions, and deserves credit for this and for this alone. He did not make the discovery, and would never have made it if he had been left to his own resources. I have nothing to say regarding the probable success of this "new industry" (?) save this: that I do not believe that the substance can yet be made cheaply enough to make it a succesful rival of sugar. It is possible that the time may come when this can be done, but it is probably far distant.

His new theatre there will be ready in November. Mr. Cobbe will arrange a new tour for Mr. Barrett to cover all of the intervening time that is available.

The Boston Herald says: Miss Fanny Davenport closed her brilliant and successful season at the Park theatre last night. Miss Davenport has been a favorite in this city, and her great talent has ever been recognized by Boston's critics, but never has she stood so high in the estimation of the most critical, as she does at the present time. Those who had an opportunity to compare her performance of Fedora with that of the great Bernhardt, better appreciate now the excellence of her work in that trying role. In Shakesperian comedy, and as the unfortunate Nancy Sykes she also won triumphs, and it is doubtful if there be another actress on the American stage to-day who could play with equal success the difficult and widely differing characters which are now in Miss Davenport's repertoire.

In a lengthy platform it declares that the objects of the founders of our republic were to secure the greatest good to the greatest number of people, with an aim toward absolute liberty, and that this shall be the main object to be reached by the new national association, which is to be called the Co-operative Workers of America. It will work to elevate and dignify labor; to instruct laboring men; to better their social and moral condition; and will establish a bureau of labor statistics.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

CHARMING EFFECT.

Dr. J. R. Schwartz, Harrisburg, Pa., says: "I used it in a case of dyspepsia, with charming effect, and am much pleased with it."

MY LOST SELF.

You wonder why my eyes are dim with tears,
Then, shall I tell you? Long and long ago—
So long ago—years piled on weary years—
There was a little child I used to know;

And every day and night, and every hour,
We took life's gift together, sun and shade,
And saw the rainbow shining through the shower,
And heard the talk that building robins made.

We thought the world was ours, to come and go
About its highways, finding treasures rare;
We thought all heaven was ours, and fashioned so
Grand, castle after castle high in air.

Ah! now I find the world a desert wild;
No room in all the sky for tower of mine,
But, most of all, I miss my comrade child,
Her brave, true courage and her faith divine.

Dead? Changed? I know not, sweet; I only know
That sometimes from the mirror's shining space,
In my own features, worn and faded so,
I catch a glimmer of the bright lost face.

You will no longer wonder that I weep,
My little girl with eyes so bright and clear;
Whatever treasure we may hold or keep,
To lose one's happy self is saddest, dear.

MRS. LESLIE'S PILGRIMAGE.

She Is to Sail for Europe on the City of Rome.

From the New York Journal.

To-day New York will lose one of its most charming women, who is not only a brilliant conversationalist, a skilful linguist and a great social favorite, but also possesses that rare attribute of being a thorough business woman.

Mrs. Frank Leslie will sail this morning for Europe, to be gone until September, on board the City of Rome. She will be one of a large company, but her own immediate party will consist of herself and her friend Miss Ella Bennett. The latter is a charming and vivacious Southern beauty, who has accompanied Mrs. Leslie a great deal during the past winter. She will make her first tour abroad under Mrs. Leslie's chaperonage and will enjoy the sights of the Old World with all the freshness of an ingenue.

Mrs. Leslie was discovered yesterday in her private office busily settling up matters before she sailed, and wished bon voyage.

"And so you are really going to leave us?" was asked.

"Yes," she replied, with one of her characteristic and graceful movements. "I am going away until next September, but I must return then to prepare for the winter's business. Everything is settled and I shall leave no unfinished business behind me. All my contracts have been made until the close of the year and the plans of my publications have been laid out for the next six months. So you see I am free to run away for a little while. In fact, I feel like a boy that has earned a holiday, for, as you know, I have not been away from my business since last fall, except a trip I took to Washington during the winter."

"Notwithstanding your holiday, you will probably indulge in literary and art work while abroad?" was suggested. Mrs. Leslie gave a silvery laugh as she replied: "Yes, I do not believe that I shall be able to refrain. In London I expect to meet quite a number of literary people, especially Wilkie Collins, whom I have had business relations with for several years, but have never met. I shall also arrange for illustrations by the best artists for my magazine and probably purchase a number of paintings for reproduction."

Mrs. Leslie will go from London to Paris, where she will spend most of the time, with possibly an extended sojourn in Italy. She has already made twenty-two ocean voyages, not only crossing the Atlantic many times, but also the Pacific. Upon her return in the fall she will go to Mexico and make arrangements herself for the publication of a Spanish-American newspaper. She will supervise all the details, and as she speaks Spanish fluently, this will be a comparatively easy matter for her. She will then come back to New York and continue the work of her immense publishing house, of which she is the head.

Making Change.

The number of combinations of coins that might be used in changing a quarter is 215. The pieces used in making the changes are the 20 cent piece, 10 cent piece, 5 cent piece, 3 cent piece and 1 cent piece. To be able to make all the changes would require one 20 cent piece, two 10 cent pieces, five 5 cent pieces, eight 3 cent pieces, twelve 5 cent pieces and twenty-five 1 cent pieces, making in all fifty-three pieces of money, representing $1.38.

When Christmas came with its good cheer, its fun and its merry-making, we used to deprecate its colds, but that was long ago, before the days of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Now it is very different. A new era has dawned on us, and great and small, little and tall, merry men all, are happy.

TO-MORROW—Local rains, followed by fair weather; variable winds; falling, followed by rising temperature.

We told you a few days ago that as new goods came in we'd add them to the May sale attractions.

We added the $1.50 Silk Check Louisenes for 50c. The summer Silks in Stripes for 27c. The all silk Black Brocaded Sash Ribbons that cost 75c to import, for 39c and

Beginning to-morrow morning we shall add the Tufted Zephyr Cloths for 13½c and on the following morning (Saturday) we shall begin the sale of those French Crepe Cloths for 19c.

As we've before told you, it isn't possible to estimate goods by the price they bear; 58c all wool dress goods we sold last Monday for 13½c. Week before last we sold you white goods for 10½c. There was nothing the matter then nor is there anything now the matter with the goods we are selling except, perhaps, the price and that's too low.

We are making a special sale of Wool Laces, including Flouncings at less than half cost. There is quite a variety to select from. A most economical and suitable trimming for spring wraps as well as dresses.

Men's Collars 10c each, as good quality as we ever sold at 25c. This is a revolution in prices.

Special! 43 dozen Ladies' summer Vests, 39c each; all sizes.

Embroidered Robes, $2.50.

Ruching Sale again to-morrow, 5c to 25c a yard, on center table. Some new specialties included.

New features of our Underwear department—Extra sized Gowns for large persons.

Dainty Valenciennes Lace trimmed sets, will be put on sale in a few days.

A new line of Misses' Underwear made specially for us.

In the Ladies' Suit Room, all-wool, neatly made dress for $8.95, and an extra good White Dress for $3.50. Alterations always made free of charge.

Speaking of Muslin Underwear as a whole, it's here and now in as good condition as we know how to put it. We don't make it, we buy it. We pick out the neatest styles of trimmings, the best work on suitable material, and have it made for us. Whatever is good comes here; whatever is not good stays away.

The Ten Days' May Sale is bringing the crowds here. Are we selling everything below cost, then? Why, we said nothing about cost. We told you we were utilizing the loss of others. You know there's always a profit for somebody in somebody's loss.

Bishopism.

"This mind-reading of Bishop is easy enough," exclaimed a well known East Side gentleman to an acquaintance last week. "I can do it myself."

"Can eh? Well read my mind."

The first speaker placed his right hand on the friend's forehead, and taking his pulse in his left exclaimed, after shutting his eyes a moment: "You are now thinking deeply of buying some of those east front lots of E. H. Baker's, at Twenty-forth and Flora avenue at $41.00 per foot; and seeing that lots two blocks west of there are held at $65.00 and $70.00 per foot, and all the surrounding lots are held at $50.00 per foot, I can't blame you."

"Well, you did strike it right I do declare. Do you know how the lots lay?"

"They lie the prettiest of any lots in the addition."

"How far is it from that line street Dummy line?"

"One block, and only two blocks to the Vine street school house."

"Do you think those lots are a good investment?"

"Well, I am on my way to secure all of them now, if I can. They are worth $50.00 per foot today and will sell for $60.00 inside of thirty days, as soon as work on the Dummy line is commenced." Starting off.

"Hold on! Where is Baker's office?"

"117 West Sixth street, room 8."

"Wait a moment," catching him by the arm. "What are the terms?"

"Terms arranged to suit purchaser," and he jerked away and was off down the street like a shot, heading toward THE STAR building.

His friend gazed after him in open mouthed astonishment. 198
